Grand Canyon National Park, is described as "a land to humble the soul." Rock walls, sometimes a mile high, are all colors of the rainbow! The 277-mile long Colorado River flows between the rock walls. Visitors can camp, ride horses and mules and hike on hundreds of miles of trails. Native Americans inhabited the area as long as 4,000 years ago. President Roosevelt proclaimed the canyon, located in Arizona, a national monument in 1908. In 1919, Congress established it as a national park.
